President Bush has a mouthful for BG

Bush train visits Bowling Green

Bush uses BG stop to mock opponent

by Christina Wise
city editor

When President Bush rolled into Bowling Green Saturday on "The Spirit of America," he billed it as a trip to "blow the whistle on Bill Clinton."

In addition to telling the near 10,000 people assembled between Reed St. and Frazee Ave. what he plans to do in his second term, Bush levied several allegations against his Democratic candidate.

"While I'm talking about the positive things, Governor Clinton insists on cutting America down," he said. "While I'm focusing on the future, he is engaged in a deliberate campaign of distortion."

Bush said that in order to raise the money he needs for his economic plan, Clinton would not only raise taxes on people who make more than $200,000 but on the middle class, too.

Quoting an Arkansas newspaper, Bush said, "If Congress followed the example Bill Clinton set as Governor of Arkansas, it would pass a program that hit the middle class the hardest."

"Governor Clinton says he wants to do for the national economy what he's done for Arkansas," the president said. "If you look at his record you'll see that's not a promise. That's a threat."

He said the Clinton plan would hurt Bowling Green residents. According to Bush, someone working in administration at the University who makes about $38,000 a year taxable income would have to give another $1,700 annually "to the taxman" under the Clinton plan.

He ridiculed Clinton for saying he's a different kind of Democrat.

"You tell me what's so different about socking it to the middle class. We don't need that kind of difference."

Bush also shunned Clinton's lack of foreign policy experience. He said while Clinton goes to Hollywood, seeking foreign policy advice from rock group U2, he works with John Major and Boris Yeltsin.

"Bill Clinton can consult Boy George if he wants," Bush said. "I'll stick with the experts."

The Democratic candidate was quick to counter Bush's attack as Clinton representatives distributed information to the media claiming the president's tour through Ohio and Michigan was an effort to salvage the "economic train wreck" he has created.

"Instead of tossing lies off the back of a train," the Clinton release said, "George Bush should come to Louisville Tuesday and debate."

In addition to trying to undermine his opponent, Bush appealed to University students for support.

"I want an America where every graduate of this great school can find a good, decent job," he said.

He said under his administration, half the college students in America now receive some kind of federal grant or tuition assistance.

Referring to his "America 2000" plan, he also said he wants to change our elementary and secondary educational system so parents can choose which school their children attend, public, private or religious.

Bush ended his speech by saying what America needs is a smaller, more responsible government, one that understands the strength of America lies in places like Bowling Green.

"Our world is filled with so much opportunity and we've stood fast for freedom. In this election, I'm the one that stands for freedom and democracy," Bush said. "And I stand for these things because they are the way we can build a safer and more secure America."

Security beefed up for murder pretrial

by Chris Miller
courts reporter

Courtroom spectators had to pass through a metal detector and a half dozen Wood County Sheriff's deputies were on hand at the Friday morning pretrial hearing in the case of accused murderer John Umbel.

Concern for Umbel's safety has prompted the court to increase security as the Jan. 22 trial date approaches.

Umbel is accused of the kidnapping, rape and murder of a 3-year-old Bowling Green boy, Alex Leimgruber, in March of this year.

The severe nature of the crime prompted many local residents last spring to turn out in support of the young victim, periodically holding candlelight vigils in front of the Wood County Courthouse. Baby blue ribbons and t-shirts became the adopted symbol of the Leimgruber supporters.

Several friends and family members of the victim, some wearing the light blue shirts which bear his name, were present at the Friday hearing presided over by Judge Donald DeCessna.

"We're not happy with the way things are progressing," said Alice Hummel, the victim's grandmother.

"There's nothing to do now until January," Hummel added.

At Friday's hearing Umbel appeared haggard, his beard having grown grey and bushy since last spring, as he sat impassively between defense attorneys John Duffin and Adrian Cimerman.

While no new motions were presented by either the defense or Wood County Prosecutor Alan Mayberry, DeCessna insisted on scheduling another hearing before the trial in order to "keep this moving."

"This is not one of those cases that comes along every day," DeCessna said.

Another pretrial hearing is set to be held Nov. 5 at 10 a.m.

AIDS quilt may come to BG

by Julie Tagliaferro administration reporter

Graduate Student Senate approved a proposal Friday to co-sponsor bringing the NAMES Project AIDS Memorial Quilt to the University.

The assembly voted unanimously with one abstention to give $500 to help bring the quilt to the Lenhart Grand Ballroom for two days in February.

Greg MacVarish, director of orientation and co-chairman of the University Quilt Committee said the cost to bring a portion of the quilt to the University is $10,000. He said the committee is asking different campus organizations for monetary support in the program.

"The quilt [coming to the University] is going to be a reality," MacVarish said. "Students and Wood and Lucas County residents will have the opportunity to connect with the disease on a personal level."

Each panel of the quilt represents a person who died of AIDS and was created by loved ones. The entire quilt covers 19 football fields, MacVarish said.

Because of the size and the fact that it continues to grow, it will no longer be displayed in one piece after being shown in Washington, D.C. one last time this fall.

According to MacVarish, the quilt is divided into sections with each section containing eight panels. He said the committee hopes to bring 60 to 70 panels to the University so that 560 to 640 victims of the disease will be represented.

MacVarish said the committee is trying to bring panels of the quilt representing victims from Northwest Ohio and Southern Michigan so people can feel the locality and identify with AIDS more.

"We want students to recognize there are people behind the numbers and statistics," he said. "We want people to wonder what makes those people who died [of the disease] different than them."

In addition to the quilt, MacVarish said educational programs about AIDS would happen in the weeks prior to the event. He also said pamphlets, videos and condoms would be available when the quilt is on display.

In other business, the assembly voted unanimously in favor of asking University Administration and the Faculty Senate to make a request to Gov. George Voinovich that student members of the Board of Trustees be granted voting rights.

Tony Fluellen, GSS president and a student trustee, said although student trustees have the opportunity to express their opinions on issues the board discusses, they do not get to vote and are not even aware when voting occurs.

"It is like a secret society when voting occurs," Fluellen said. "Student members have no [voting] power so this is important that we try to help them." The assembly approved a resolution to increase the Professional Development Fund by $25.

The fund would make available $125 a year for each graduate student to pay for expenses while attending conferences and other programs. Students would receive $75 for attending a program and $50 if they presented a paper or participated on a panel while at the program.

The increase would benefit all students who applied for the funds since August 26th.

BG economy topic of breakfast talk

by Chris Hawley
local government reporter

Times are hard -- and they won't get better soon, according to a panel of local businessmen who addressed city commerce and government leaders during a Friday "Breakfast in BG" discussion on the U.S. economy sponsored by the University Relations Department.

"We're not going to pop out of recession like we normally do," said Roger Vail, president of Bowling Green's F.W. Uhlman Company. "There are too many forces at play."

Vail and fellow panel members

Bill Sluhan, chief executive officer of Perrysburg's Master Chemical Company, Huntington National Bank senior vice-president Bob Lucas and Barney Barber, plant manager of Bowling Green's Modine Manufacturing blamed factors as diverse as health care costs, consumer confidence and foreign trade patterns for the United States' current economic slump.

The four also blamed a poorly-educated workforce for some inefficiency in businesses and said making schools a priority should accompany any long-term plans for improving the economy.

"[High school graduates] can't spell, they can't write, they can't put two thoughts together, they don't know any history and they can't add, subtract, multiply and divide," Sluhan said.

"We have to get serious about our kids and what they can do in the marketplace," Barber said.

The four predicted little improvement in the economy during the next year, but said they believe recession is not all bad.

Vail said people are taking advantage of the lowest interest rates in 30 years to refinance and pay off debts. He said manufacturers are increasing efficiency and exports to developing countries have increased as manufacturers seek alternatives to the depressed markets of Canada, Europe and Japan.

Vail added customers in his company's Uhlman's department stores are paying with larger-denomination bills and said it indicates people have money but are saving more of it.

Barber said the recession has caused innovation in manufacturing as well as an increase in quality, especially in automobiles, because consumers are looking for value.

The panelists said one of the recent recession's worst symptoms has been the economy's unpredictability. Barber said he believes maintaining a "business as usual" outlook is the only way to counter the market's swings.

"We all read the Wall Street Journal," he said. "You read it on Monday, you feel good; you read it on Tuesday, you feel bad. My advice is to throw it away, don't read it at all."

Barber said his company has been forced to lay off nearly half of its work force but has continued to pursue new ventures, including new plants in Singapore and Japan. He urged business leaders to seek new markets abroad.

"If you want to expand your business, you're definitely going to have to look offshore," he said.

However, Sluhan said Northwest Ohio is still a prime area for development. He said the area has a good water supply, a central location, an underutilized airport and good roads.

Sluhan said many companies do not settle in the area only because they believe it is a strong pro-union area.

The panelists briefly discussed labor issues including the national family leave bill now being debated in Congress. All four said they support leave for workers during family emergencies, but do not approve of involvement by the federal government.

"I do hate to see it become a law because it just means more regulations," Vail said.

The family leave bill would provide a tax credit to employers who let workers have unpaid time off during emergencies.

Three "Breakfast in BG" sessions on current affairs are organized each semester by the University relations department.

Dems vie for Senate hold

by Donna Cassata
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Up in the clouds, Elvis Presley sits in a pink Cadillac next to a cardboard cutout of Democratic Senate nominee Russell Feingold and tells Wisconsin voters:

"Take it from the king — This Russ Feingold record gets me all shook up."

Shook up may be the best way to describe Republicans as they see a handful of unexpected Democratic candidates threaten to increase the party's hold on the Senate, political analysts say.

Last year, President Bush's post-Gulf War popularity and the numbers alone — 20 Democratic and 15 Republican seats up for grabs — promised GOP gains in 1992. But with five weeks to the general election and Bush trailing Bill Clinton, analysts say Democratic pickups are more realistic in the Senate than now has 57 Democrats and 43 Republicans.

"All this looks like an even greater Democratic Senate than we have now," said Merle Black of Emory University.

"Sixty seems very reasonable" for Democrats to expect, said analyst Stuart Rothenberg. "If Republicans only have a net loss of one, consider them very grateful."

Sixty seats would give Democrats their biggest margin since their 61 seats in 1979. Even their 1969 mark of 64 is within striking distance — bad news for Republicans who controlled the Senate just five years ago.

Sen. Phil Gramm of Texas, head of the National Republican Senatorial Committee, shrugs off any dire forecasts.

"Anybody who thinks they know what's going to happen ... it's bravado," said Gramm, who has adopted the motto, "Work does better than worry."

But consider two of the GOP's unpleasant September surprises:

—In Wisconsin, businessman Joe Checota and Rep. Jim Moody waged a nasty campaign for the Democratic nomination while Republican Sen. Robert Kasten waited for a not only "broke, but bruised" challenger. Running far behind the two Democrats was Feingold, who used humorous ads to set him apart, including the Elvis spot.

The result was a shocker. Feingold won the primary with 70 percent of the Democratic vote.

"That was unprecedented. I've never seen anything like that," Rothenberg said. "That is the biggest surprise of the year. Forget Carol Moseley Braun. Forget Guy Vander Jagt. ... This was not just a bomb. This was a nuclear bomb."

Polls show Feingold with a double-digit lead over Kasten, who squeaked by with 51 percent in 1986. Kasten's campaign recently launched its own Elvis ad in which a facsimile of the late singer accuses Feingold of supporting a tax increase that has Elvis, as mentioned before, all shook up.

"There's no doubt we have catching up to do with the dynamics of the primary," said Paul Welday, Kasten's campaign manager.

—In New York, former vice-presidential nominee Geraldine Ferraro was the front-runner throughout the campaign but was sullied by her opponents' charges that her husband, John Zaccaro, had ties to organized crime.

On primary night, state Attorney General Robert Abrams came from behind and emerged with a lead of about 11,000 votes. Ferraro has yet to concede.

Republican incumbent Sen. Alfonse D'Amato has been dogged by charges of ethics violations. Early post-primary polls showed Abrams up by 15 points.

Welfare bill may curb costs

COLUMBUS (AP) — State senators could vote this week on a rewritten welfare reform bill that sponsors say could help curb Ohio's spiraling Medicaid costs.

Chairman Richard Finan, R-Cincinnati, reviewed the bill last week in the Senate Ways and Means Committee. He said it has been stripped of many provisions that drew heated opposition when first announced.

The Legislature returns this week from summer recess. Finan said the bill could be brought to the Senate floor Tuesday, barring some procedural snag. If approved, it would then go to the House for a possible vote later this year.

Finan's committee made changes as a result of concerns by the nursing home industry and others, including welfare advocates who said the earlier version was overly stringent.

For instance, the new proposal eliminates a provision requiring welfare mothers to receive birth control counseling.

Also deleted were General Assistance demonstration projects, such as a requirement for recipients to work or document job searches. The bill instead adapts a Department of Human Services policy requiring participation in a jobs program to be eligible for General Assistance.

Finan said while the bill remains controversial, "We got rid of a lot of things objectionable to an awful lot of people."

The new bill changes a tax on nursing homes to $1 per-bed, per-day instead of 1.5 percent of operating revenues, as proposed originally. The industry said the change spreads the burden more evenly but the bill is still unfair to homes that serve private patients only.

The bed-tax would raise $22.8-$24.1 million annually to qualify for an additional $36.9-$45.6 million in federal funds. The revenues would help fund the Ohio PASSPORT program, which helps elderly patients remain in their homes rather than go into nursing homes.

It also would supplement reimbursements of nursing homes for Medicaid patients and fund other kinds of community-based services.

The bill would put a ceiling on Aid To Dependent Children grants of two children per family, although the Children's Defense Fund of Ohio and other groups strongly oppose this provision.

Finan says the two-child provision will free up money for child support and paternity establishment programs.

The nursing home industry said it still is not satisfied with the proposed tax.

"We still have problems with the bed tax," said Clark Law, president of the Association of Ohio Philanthropic Homes and Housing for the Aging.

"Obviously it's better than before, but it does damage to facilities that are essentially 100 percent private pay," he said.

Law and others have asked that the Legislature look elsewhere for new revenues. They suggested the cable television and fast-food industries as possibilities.

The nursing homes also object to a provision in the rewritten bill that places a two-year moratorium on new beds and requires pre-admission screening to document the need for nursing home care.

Eight in 100,000 take their own lives...

Suicides shock college campuses

by Karen Neustadt
College Press Service

When a law student at a college in Boston took her life two years ago by swallowing a handful of pills, her family, friends and professors were stunned beyond words.

She had everything going for her: a supportive family, a brilliant future. But she was a high-achieving perfectionist who often felt overwhelmed by life, though this was virtually unknown until some of her journals were found.

The law student and many like her are cases of "smiling depression," says a college mental health expert whose specialty is college suicide.

There are some students, says Leighton Whitaker, director of mental health services at Swarthmore College, Swarthmore Pa., who are in quiet despair, and comprise most of the surprising suicides among "well-adjusted" college students.

Some college students may appear to express themselves emotionally, but they are only revealing a part of themselves -- "party animals," for instance, and others who wear a mask of cheerfulness, he said.

Then there are others who are more forthright: "I can't take it anymore."

Those five words are considered a "red flag" for college students who may be contemplating suicide, say mental health experts who have watched students struggle with depression and despair.

The college suicide rate continues to grow, according to data

"The more 'macho' the man, the more likely he will be involved in morbid behavior, which includes suicide and murder. These men are likely to avoid mental health services, although therapy can be a highly effective preventative for them."

Leighton Whitaker,
Swarthmore College
mental health director

from the U.S. Centers for Disease Control.

Driven by low self-esteem, isolation, substance abuse and withdrawal, about eight in 100,000 college students take their lives, according to a recent report by the Journal of College Student Psychotherapy, which studied 200 U.S. campuses.

Being a college student, however, may actually act as a buffer for youth suicide. The figures reflect a suicide rate 50 percent less than their non-college peers in the 18-24 age group.

"Most of the increase in the last three decades was due to an increase in youth suicide in general, and the vast majority of those were white males," Whitaker said.

The death of a student by his own hand has a chilling ripple-effect that sweeps the campus, touching friends, classmates and professors, said Whitaker, and requires a process he calls "postvention" which includes grief counseling and public services for those who knew the deceased.

A Cry Of Despair

COLLEGE STUDENT

SUICIDE

Leighton C. Whitaker Richard E. Slimak
Editors

Whitaker strongly advises that survivors of a suicide not try to avoid the grief process, which may be assisted by counseling, as they may also become seriously depressed.

"There is no more severe campus emotional issue than that of the suicide of a student, except the closing of the institution itself," he said, noting campus communities can be more tightly knit than small cities.

Some campuses consider student suicide prevention a major priority.

A rash of suicides during the 1991-92 school year at the University of Maryland's College Park campus prompted the administration to review mental health services and find ways to make support more readily available to students.

Eight students committed suicide during that year, which, according to the publication Campus Crime, is estimated to be triple the number that could be expected on a campus of 35,000.

The suicides did not appear to be related, but school officials said it appeared the students were under severe stress because of personal problems and the fallout from budget cuts that disrupted campus life.

Since 1973, the United States Coast Guard Academy in New London, Conn., has had a community-based suicide prevention program functioning within its ranks. In the years since the program was developed, more than 50 students have been treated for suicidal thoughts and severe depression.

Prior to 1973, the Academy lost four cadets and one faculty member to suicide in a five-year period. Since the program was set up, there has not been a completed suicide on campus.

New cadets are required to attend lectures, then take part in a discussion exploring the problem of student suicide.

Juniors are given four hours of suicide prevention training which includes in-depth discussions of causes, myths, misconceptions and "red flags." They watch videos and pledge to become their "brothers' and sisters' keepers."

Twice as many male college students succeed in killing themselves as female college students; however, studies reveal females make many more suicide threats and attempts than males.

While the figures are tragic, they are more encouraging than the figures for the general population of the country, where four times as many males commit suicide than females.

For every male college student suicide, there are, on the average nationally, suicide attempts by eight other males, while an additional 12 men threaten suicide. For each female student suicide, 58 other women attempt suicide and 145 threatened to kill themselves, according to research data in Whitaker's book, "College Student Suicide."

Whitaker, who often counsels students in distress, also cites the "machismo" role as one of the reasons twice as many male students take their lives than female students.

"The more 'macho' the man, the more likely he will be involved in morbid behavior, which includes suicide and murder," Whitaker said. "These men are likely to avoid mental health services, although therapy can be a highly effective preventative for them."

The psychologist, who recently published a paper titled "Machismo and Morbidity," said overall, college students engage in less macho behavior than their non-college peers.

Since mental health services are usually highly accessible to college students, there is an opportunity to prevent suicide that their non-college peers do not have. Gun control is also quite strict on many campuses, making accessibility to firearms more difficult than in other settings.

Young women who think about suicide, said Whitaker, are more likely to give adequate warning they are distressed and are more apt to see a counselor, two factors which can deter the act of suicide.

"The fact that women make more threats is positive in itself," he said. "They more readily signal they need help."

Alcohol is the single most overlooked risk factor for college suicides, according to Whitaker, who says, "Societal denial of the physically and psychologically damaging effects of alcohol have allowed this drug to keep a sacred place."

Most student suicides usually are spurred on by heavy alcohol or drug use, even if just for an evening.

Illegal seizing uncovered

Organic farmers hurt by few federal funds

by John Chalfant
The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, Ohio -- State liquor agents who confiscate video gambling machines and other items in raids should have to prove the material is contraband before it is forfeited, the Ohio Supreme Court was told.

Lawyer John Connor II of Columbus said it could take a year or more for operators of private clubs to regain money and records held by the Ohio Department of Liquor Control.

Connor said an investigator decides what is to be seized, and the agency fails to follow the letter of the law in scheduling court hearings at which the property is subject to forfeiture.

Proceeds of forfeited property go to law enforcement agencies.

"In this country, you can't take someone's property, just grab it, and then say I'm going to set the rules on whether I keep it or not, or how," Connor said.

"It's only one man's determination whether it's contraband or not, and they take a lot of property. They take books, tax records, computers, money," he said in an interview.

Kurt Gearhiser, an assistant state attorney general representing the department, said agents seize anything they believe may be evidence in a gambling case.

He said owners may request return of items at hearings.

"We give back on all petitions of forfeiture, if anybody requests it, all non-gambling equipment. In other words, tax records, all that stuff's given back," Gearhiser said.

"Is it a hassle for some of the people? Yes, it is. The way I look at it, it's a cost of doing business. If they didn't gamble, we wouldn't be in there, and they wouldn't lose their tax records. Maybe they lose them for six months, but they'll get them back," he said.

Gearhiser said the department confiscates at least 500 machines a year.

Justices heard arguments from Connor and Gearhiser last week in a case stemming from a 1988 raid at a Sons of Italy club in East Liverpool. Agents seized two games of chance called Top Draw and Riviera, along with $817.

A Franklin County common pleas judge subsequently ruled the property could be forfeited, and the 10th Ohio District Court of Appeals agreed.

However, the decision was found to be in conflict with two other appeals courts, and the case went to the Ohio Supreme Court.

The state contends that if a permit holder breaks a law or administrative rule, the case for forfeiture essentially has been proven.

Justice Herbert Brown appeared unconvinced.

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) -- Organic farmers have become victims of a federal agricultural system which gears research and education toward "high-input" methods that rely on heavy chemical use, say advocates of organic farming.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture spends only $6.7 million of its $1.6 billion annual research budget on organic and other alternative agriculture programs, said Elizabeth Bird, a researcher at the Center for Rural Affairs in Walt Hill, Neb.

And that is an increase from 1987, when the USDA did not even have a research program for organic agriculture, Bird said.

"The picture's brighter than it used to be," she said. "But it's still dim."

Miami County farmer David Hess went into organic farming because conventional agriculture was not working. The more expensive fertilizer he poured onto his fields, the smaller his corn harvest became.

But eight years after he stopped using agricultural chemicals, Hess is still struggling to turn a profit.

With no one to tell him how to farm without fertilizers, pesticides or herbicides -- and without the livestock that most organic farmers use for manure -- Hess has developed an elaborate experimental farm that tests hundreds of different combinations of crop rotations, seed types and tilling techniques. But he said he still is looking for the best system.

"I'd have a hard time recommending this to someone else," said the 43-year-old Hess. "I shouldn't have to be doing this. It's what universities are for."

"He's beating his head against the wall," added Todd Fackler, an organic farmer with a 220-acre cattle and grain operation near Plymouth. "It's what I've done. It's what we're all doing."

However, there are signs of change.

Ohio State University, which operates the state's agricultural extension service, started a $1 million-a-year Sustainable Agriculture Program in 1990, complete with a 120-acre experimental farm near suburban Reynoldsburg.

Hess decided to switch to organic agriculture in 1978, four years after he bought his 56-acre farm near Pleasant Hill. He began developing crop-rotation systems that rely on soybeans and clovers -- which put nitrogen into the soil -- to replenish fields for corn and wheat. The problem has been choosing the right system.

Hess' farm has since become an experiment station treating each eight-plant row in a slightly different way. Each row is harvested and weighed separately, and the data is recorded in his notebook.

Slow recession recovery hinders real estate sales

Fear of economy stops people from plunging in

by John D. McClain
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON -- Rita Mumaw says the real estate business should be booming. After all, mortgage rates are at their lowest level in nearly two decades and there's a large supply of affordable homes.

But buyers aren't flocking to buy homes -- at least not like they did during recoveries from most other recessions.

"They're afraid of the economy," says Mumaw, sales manager for the Coldwell Banker branch in Gaithersburg, Md. "They wonder whether they will have a job next month, whether their wives will still be working."

Thomas N. Thompson, an Owensboro, Ky., home builder, concurs.

"People are still very apprehensive about the state of the economy," he says. "They are very uncertain about their job status and job security. In the absence of that confidence, they're delaying purchases of durables like houses and cars and appliances."

Mumaw and Thompson are like real estate brokers and home builders throughout much of the country who are finding sales crimped by the slowest recovery from any recession since World War II.

Sales of previously owned homes fell in August for the fourth time in five months. Sales of new homes declined in July for the fourth time this year; some analysts say they remained flat in August.

Construction of new homes and apartments did post a big jump in August. But that was the first increase in three months and was accompanied by a drop in building permits. That could mean slack building activity in coming months.

"It's clear that rates ... are not sufficient to get people out there to buy homes," says Daryl Delano, a housing analyst with Cahners Economics in Newton, Mass. "Jobs and incomes are of greater importance to people. The labor market is improving only very, very slowly."

Mortgage rates plunged after the Federal Reserve slashed two other key interest rates in early July. Thirty-year, fixed-rate mortgages had dropped to 7.84 percent two weeks ago, lowest since July 1973, although they crept up to 8.02 percent during the week ended last Friday.

The lower rates have produced more buyer traffic. But, Mumaw says, that's been braked by a lot of consumer caution.

"They're having a hard time making a decision," she says of prospective buyers.

Mumaw also points to another problem: consumers' inability to save because of slow-growing incomes and debt burdens remaining from the so-called "go-go '80s."

"The buyers who we find are qualified, who have the necessary incomes, don't have the down payments," she says.

Other would-be buyers often can't unload their current homes.

"We deal with a lot of relocation properties," she explains. "But we're finding a lot of people can't sell their house in, say, Tennessee -- so they can't buy here. They just don't have the down payment."

Thompson says the housing industry "has been the engine that has pulled the economy out of previous recessions."

WALT DISNEY WORLD COLLEGE PROGRAM

Walt Disney World Co. representatives will present an information session on the Walt Disney World College Program on Monday, October 5, 7:00pm, in room 115 Education. Juniors Shawn Howard (74), Eddie Nicholson (79) and Deric Kenne (76) lead the field up the hill during the second mile of the 10K race. Nicholson was the first BG runner, finishing fourth. Miami's Fred Kieser (105) won the event.

Miami nips the women by six to win Mel Brodt

by Andy Dugan
sports writer

The women's cross country team took a close second place to Miami Friday, in the Falcons' only home meet of the year.

The Mel Brodt Invitational hosted Miami, the University of Cincinnati, Youngstown State and the University of Akron. The meet was also a dual meet against Miami. Overall, Miami won the meet with 36 points to second place BG's 42 points. In the dual meet scoring, it was Miami: 27 points, BG: 30 points.

"We could've done much better," said women's coach Steve Price. "This is the first time a MAC school has beaten us this year. We had a lot of mediocre running."

Top runner Cheri Triner agreed with Price. "We had a lot of people that were sick. If we would have been up to par, I think we could've beaten them," Triner said.

Triner won the 3.1 mile race with a time of 17:57. Miami's Julie Rhoda led for the first two miles of the race, then faded at the end.

"We were together in the first mile, which was all flat. At the second mile, we hit the hill and she pulled away. It wasn't until the third mile that I caught her. I wanted to stay with her the first two miles, then outdo her in the last mile. It didn't work out that way, but when I checked my pace, I saw that I was right on track; she just went out hard," Triner said. Rhoda took second in 18:18.

Triner, who is undefeated, stated her goal was to win the race. She commented on her third mile being strong and that "it was just a matter of reaching her" in order to win.

"Cheri ran tough," Price said. "She beat one of the top conference girls. She's also one of the few BG girls to break 18 minutes on this course."

Price also commented on Suzanne Isco's 10th place overall finish; fourth for BG. "She ran the best race, outside of Cheri, on the team," he said.

Other BG placers were: Tracey Losi, fifth place with 19:04; Jill Strawser, ninth with 19:26; Suzanne Isco, 10th with 19:30; and Jenny Wheeler, 17th with 20:18.

The women's next meet will be the Lakefront Invitational this Saturday in Chicago, Ill. The race is a 5K (3.1 miles) and will begin at 11 a.m.

Redskins defeat Falcons

BG finishes 3rd behind Miami, Cincinnati at Mel Brodt Invite

by Andy Dugan
sports writer

The men's cross country team struggled to a third place finish Friday in its lone home meet of the season, the Mel Brodt Invitational.

The meet hosted Miami, the University of Cincinnati, the University of Akron and Youngstown State. It also served as a dual meet against Miami.

The Redskins dominated the race, winning with 27 points. The University of Cincinnati took second with 57 points, followed by BG with 62 points. In the dual meet, the score was Miami: 18 points, BG: 43 points.

"Miami ran the perfect team race," men's coach Sid Sink said.

Eddie Nicholson placed first for the Falcons and fourth overall with a time of 33:02. Miami's Fred Kieser won the 6.2 mile race in 31:58.

"The race was slow throughout the first three miles, so it was a very tactical race. At the three mile mark, Miami tried to stay together as a team. Fred Keiser gave role call at the four mile mark, then he took off and his pack followed," Nicholson said. "You've got to stay very close together as a team because the slightest thing can break the pack up."

Both Nicholson and Sink were disappointed in the Falcon's team performance.

"Mentally, at the end of the race, I fell apart. We didn't run well together as a team," Nicholson said.

Sink agreed that the team wasn't performing as expected.

"We might have been afraid of a 10K race; we sure looked like we were. The race didn't start out fast and we had guys dropping off right away," Sink said. "We just aren't running aggressive enough. It's hard to say what's causing it. We need to get in better shape."

Sink said he thought Nicholson, Scott Kelly and Glen Lubbert had decent performances.

"We're going to work hard this week and try to get some kind of rhythm back and a more positive attitude. We are going to try and bounce back," said Sink.

Other placers for the men were: Scott Kelly, eighth place with 33:40; Shawn Howard, 15th with 34:27; Brad Schaser, 17th with 34:45; and Deric Kenne, 18th with 34:46.

The men's next meet will be the Notre Dame Invitational in Notre Dame, Ind. on Friday. The five mile race will begin at 5 p.m.

Bowling Green outlasts East Carolina, 44-34

by Glen Lubbert
sports editor

The Bowling Green football team was able to go the distance in a marathon match-up with East Carolina to win, 44-34, Saturday.

The Falcons got a much needed confidence boost as they head into their Mid-American Conference schedule next weekend. They raise their record to 2-2 overall while the Pirates fall to 2-2.

It was a game of offense with the Falcons gaining 246 yards receiving and the Pirates posting 406 yards in the air. Both teams were able to sustain lengthy drives and put points on the board right from the start.

Despite getting the scoring jump with a four-yard touchdown by Junior Smith, ECU was unable to hold the Falcons in the first quarter as they scored three straight times. BG headed into the second quarter with a 17-7 lead.

Entering the second quarter, ECU scored first on a one-yard run by Smith. The two rushing touchdowns were its first of the season. The Pirates have relied on their passing game led by Michael Anderson, who threw for 379 yards with 33 receptions on 55 attempts.

Anderson said he wasn't expecting the high scoring game. In fact, he didn't think the Falcons would give them much of a challenge, let alone score 44 points.

"They had a great offense which enabled them to score a lot of points," Anderson said. "...We thought it would be like a little scrimmage and stuff. But they fooled us. They came out ready to play and came away with the victory."

The high scoring was even a surprise to BG head coach Gary Blackney, a defense man who has served in a defensive capacity all of his coaching career.

"I've not coached in too many of those kinds of games," Blackney said. "But, it doesn't take away the happiness and the exhilaration of winning. It doesn't matter how you win. The important thing is to win."

The Falcons were able to eliminate costly turn-overs - giving up only one on a missed pass by

Offensive outburst sparks win

by Erik Pupillo
assistant sports editor

Whether it was playing in the friendly confines of the newly commemorated Doyt L. Perry Stadium or the psychological edge the Falcons gained with the donning of their "Orange Crush" uniforms, BG was able to almost double its point production of its last two games to beat the Pirates from Eastern Carolina 44-34.

"I was worried about their offense all week long," ECU coach Steve Logan said. "I think they have an NFL draft pick at quarterback and he was effective, but the thing we did not do was stop the running game."

"I felt if we could have stopped the running game and made him [White] throw, we would have had a chance, but we couldn't do it and that's how the game unfolded. It really wasn't a mystery."

The Falcons showed almost equal balance on offense as quarterback Erik White broke out of his two game slump to pass for 246 yards while throwing only one interception.

However, the key to BG's and White's success was the Falcons' ability to rush the football, something they have not been able to do successfully the last two weeks against the Big 10's Ohio State Buckeyes and Wisconsin Badgers.

"I was worried about their offense all week long. I think they have an NFL draft pick at quarterback and he was effective, but the thing we did not do was stop the running game."

Steve Logan, ECU head coach

"I was really happy for our offense -- with Erik, the offensive line and our running backs," coach Gary Blackney said. "We always knew we had the talent and potential to be an explosive offensive team and I think we showed that."

BG was motored by running backs Leroy Smith and Zeb Jackson, who along with White rushed for 129 yards in the first half, allowing the Falcons to chew up 17:15 minutes of possession on the game clock and head into the lockerroom with a 31-20 lead.

In the second half, Smith and Jackson both had to leave the game with injuries. Smith left with a injury to his hamstring while Jackson was banged up with a hip pointer.

The Falcons didn't miss a beat as sophomore tailback George Johnson and freshman fullback Darius Card picked up the slack and shouldered the burden of BG's ground game in the second stanza, accumulating 65 yards rushing and a combined 15 yards receiving.

"Zeb was injured and he had taken some shots out there,"

Blackney said. "ECU was a very physical football team ... We've been trying to find ways to get George in the game more often. He's on the punt return team, he's on the kickoff coverage and return team. He's an outstanding back and we want him to play more, but Zeb is also playing so well."

"Another young fellow who's exciting to watch in practice is Eric McGhee and we haven't had a chance to get him in the game. But then again, in the last two weeks we haven't had the chance to establish a running game and as we get better, we hope to give these young guys more opportunities."

According to Blackney, it takes balance between the rushing game and passing game to make both aspects of the offense successful.

"We were hitting on all eight cylinders today and White played the best game I've seen him play in the two years I've been here," Blackney said. "He has a good coach in Mike Faragalli and he's a smart kid."

Miami escapes disaster

The Associated Press

MIAMI -- Steve McLaughlin was barely wide right with a 51-yard field goal on the final play, and top-ranked Miami survived its closest call at the Orange Bowl since 1985 to beat the Wildcats 8-7.

Arizona (1-2-1) was a 27-point underdog.

The Hurricanes (3-0) nearly succumbed to missed tackles, missed field goals and a missing running game. Miami's only touchdown and the game's final points came on Gino Torretta's 2-yard pass to Dietrich Clausell late in the third quarter.

Arizona forced a punt and took over at its 35 with 3:38 left. The Wildcats moved to the Miami 35 but chose to run just one play -- a quarterback sneak in the final minute before lining up for McLaughlin's kick.

The sophomore's attempt was straight and had plenty of distance but was just wide.

Denver ousts Cleveland

by Chuck Melvin
AP sports writer

CLEVELAND -- David Treadwell kicked four field goals, and Cleveland proved that too many quarterbacks produce too little offense as the Broncos beat the Browns 12-0 Sunday.

The Broncos' running game, ranked 27th in the NFL, produced 188 of Denver's 300 yards, making up for the five sacks endured by John Elway. Second-year back Reggie Rivers clinched it with a 48-yard run from his own 5-yard line in the fourth quarter, kaying a 94-yard drive that set up Treadwell's fourth field goal.

The quarterback of the week for the Browns (1-3) was Mike Tomczak, the third man to take the snap for Cleveland in as many weeks. The result: the Browns' first shut out in more than a year. The Broncos (3-1), meanwhile, bounced back from last week's 30-0 embarrassment at Philadelphia and got their first shutout since 1989.

Tomczak followed Bernie Kosar (broken ankle) and Todd Philcox (broken thumb). Because he had been with the Browns only 12 days, he ran a conservative offense that totaled 216 total yards, 141 of them on the ground.

Michigan State slides to 0-3

Associated Press

BOSTON -- Boston College extended its shutout streak to three games with a 14-0 victory over Michigan State in a steady rain Saturday.

Dwight Shirley scored on runs of 80 and 1 yards for the 25th-ranked Eagles (4-0), who have not given up a point in 187 minutes and have outscored their last three opponents 91-0.

The last time the Eagles had three straight shutouts was in 1942.

Boston College fans, who suffered through five straight losing seasons, are already starting to think about bowl games they threw oranges on the field, a ritual for fans dreaming of a New Year's trip to Miami and the Orange Bowl.

The Spartans (0-3) never got past the Boston College 21. That drive, in the third quarter, ended when Jim Del Verne missed a 39-yard field goal attempt.

Shirley had 159 yards on 24 carries and Chuckie Dukes added 153 on 25 rushes. Glenn Foley, who entered the game ranked second nationally in passing efficiency, completed only nine of 18 passes for 83 yards.

Despite the impressive offensive numbers, the game was dominated by the BC defense, led by linebacker Tom McManus' nine tackles. The Spartans, who gained 483 yards a week earlier against Notre Dame, had less than half that amount against the Eagles.

The Michigan State defense, victimized by several big pass plays against Notre Dame, cut off deep routes successfully but could not stop the BC running attack. Linebacker Matt Christensen led the Spartans with 13 tackles, 10 unassisted.

Shirley's first touchdown came midway through the opening quarter on the first play after a Michigan State punt. The sophomore fullback broke through a big hole in the middle of the line, cut to the left sideline and outran two defenders.

Soccer stays undefeated in MASC

Bowling Green shuts out Central Michigan, 2-0

by Randy Setter
sports writer

The soccer team weathered the rain and put on a defensive show in front of the Parents and Alumni Day crowd by beating Central Michigan 2-0. The victory over its second Mid-America Soccer Conference opponents upped its record to 7-0-1 overall and 2-0-0 in the conference.

"We played as well as we played all year," coach Gary Palmisano said. "We didn't capitalize on every opportunity, but we didn't get frustrated."

Palmisano

Both teams played a scoreless first half, but it was BG that dominated the contest with smothering defense that held the Chippewas to one shot on net in the 90 minute contest.

Chris Williams scored off Ryan Dell's free kick at 72:56. The senior backfielder perfectly timed his charge to the net sending the header into the net, much to the delight of his mother who exclaimed, "On Parent's Day even!" The goal was Williams' second of the season, giving him a total of four points. Dell's assist raised his assist total to three and total points to five.

Senior forward Rob Martella tied Neil Ridgeway's record of 36 career goals with a penalty kick. Martella struck the ball into the lower right hand corner of the net as Chippewa goaltender Jerry Smolenski dove in anticipation in the opposite direction of the shot.

Martella penetrated the defense and had dribbled into the box before being tackled by a Chippewa defender, setting up the penalty kick. The goal was his seventh of the season and his 17th point, leaving him four points behind Mark Jackson's 100 career points and 11 points behind Ridgeway's school-history leading 107 points.

Before Williams scored late in the second half, the Falcon offense had plenty of scoring opportunities, keeping the pressure on the Chippewa defense, but they could not put the ball in the net.

Bob Boyle fed Martella with a perfect pass that left the tri-captain with a wide-open run to the net, but his shot deflected off the goaltender's hands. Martella had seven shots on net before he scored on his eighth attempt.

Junior midfielder Mike Kelly played strong offensively, launching three, long shots forcing ing Smolenski to make diving saves.

"We played opposite of the OSU game," Boyle said. "In this game, we played well defensively and struggled offensively, but still won. This is the sign of a good team." Goaltender Dan Traver had to come up with only one save in the contest. Traver credited the defense with making his job easier, especially on the rain-slickened field.

"They played excellent," Traver said. "Good defense makes it easier for me in net and takes away the possibility of mistakes [caused by the rain]."

Michigan jolts Houston 61-7

The Associated Press

ANN ARBOR, Mich. -- It took just 12 seconds for Michigan's Tyrone Wheatley to begin the worst rout in Houston's history.

Wheatley returned the opening kickoff 99 yards for a touchdown and the fourth-ranked Wolverines scored 35 points in the second quarter in a 61-7 romp over the Cougars on Saturday.

"It was just a downhill run from then on out," Houston coach John Jenkins said.

It was the worst defeat ever for Houston, eclipsing a 50-0 loss to Texas in 1982.

"I think any time you go down and cause a fumble on the kickoff or return the kickoff for a touchdown, that starts your fire burning," Michigan coach Gary Moeller said. "I felt that emotion myself, on the sideline."

Wheatley said the whole team seemed fired up before the game.

"If you weren't in the locker room before the game, you couldn't experience the emotion," Wheatley said. "And that transpired over to the field. After the kickoff, everyone was lifted up another 200 percent."

Michigan's output matched the record yield by Houston, which was beaten 61-14 by Texas Tech in 1954. Michigan, which controlled the ball 37 minutes, 49 seconds, rolled up 537 yards and held the high-powered Cougars to 276.

"You sure got to acknowledge a great football team today," Jenkins said. "It'll be interesting to see how far this team can go this year. There's nothing they can do about the Notre Dame tie. But there's a lot they can do from here on out."

United States sweeps Sweden in Davis Cup

MINNEAPOLIS -- John McEnroe and Pete Sampras, the doubles team that almost wasn't, rallied from a 2-1 deficit Saturday and lifted the United States into the Davis Cup final by beating Sweden's Stefan Edberg and Anders Jarryd.

The 6-1, 6-7 (2-7), 4-6, 6-3, 6-3 victory gave the Americans a 3-0 lead in the best-of-5 semifinal, rendering Sunday's singles matches -- Jim Courier vs. Edberg and Andre Agassi vs. Nicklas Kulti -- meaningless.

The United States will meet Switzerland, which leads Brazil 3-0 in its semifinal, Dec. 4-6 in Fort Worth, Texas.

Appropriately, McEnroe -- Mr. U.S. Davis Cup -- served for the match. His winner put the United States up 40-30. And when Edberg, the world's top-ranked player, couldn't return McEnroe's hard serve to his forehand, McEnroe earned his 58th Davis Cup victory -- 20 more than any other American.

McEnroe and Sampras hugged at the net, a bonding of the 33-year-old star of tennis past and the 21-year-old hope of tennis future.

It was redemption for both McEnroe and Sampras. Along with Peter Fleming, McEnroe lost doubles to Edberg and Jarryd in the 1984 final, giving Sweden the cup. Sampras dropped his two singles matches in last year's championship-round loss in France.

Because McEnroe and Sampras, who had never before teamed together, had practiced poorly all week, Agassi and U.S. captain Tom Gorman said late Friday that a change was being contemplated.

But the Americans decided before Saturday's match to stay with McEnroe, one of the best doubles players ever, and Sampras, the No. 3 player in the world.

At first, the decision looked brilliant, as the U.S. pair broke Edberg and Jarryd three times in a first set that took only 26 minutes.

But momentum swung in the second-set tiebreaker, in which Sampras lost both his serves. The third set was on serve until Sampras double-faulted on break point at 4-5, giving Sweden the lead.

In the fourth, McEnroe and Sampras re-established control by breaking Jarryd to take a 2-1 lead. Sampras fought off a break point in the next game, eventually prevailing with two straight service winners. Later, Sampras' ace gave the United States a 5-3 lead. And when Edberg failed to convert on a serve-and-volley attempt, he was broken and the match was tied.

McEnroe and Sampras took a 3-0 lead to start the fifth set. They allowed only two points while holding their serves and broke Edberg on Sampras' volley.

From there, the United States only had to hold serve, which McEnroe did twice and Sampras did once, losing only three points in the process.

The U.S. team, seeking only its second Davis Cup title since 1982, had taken a two-match lead Friday night when Courier beat Kulti.

Vikings crush Boomless Cincy

by Joe Kay
AP sports writer

CINCINNATI -- Everyone had a hand in the Minnesota Vikings' rout Sunday. Rich Gannon's sore right hand was the most valuable one, though.

Gannon ignored an injured passing hand and led the Vikings to their most lopsided victory in four years, throwing a career-high four touchdown passes in a 42-7 drubbing of the dazed Cincinnati Bengals.

Gannon, playing with a chipped bone in the right hand, completed 19 of 22 passes for 212 yards during a 28-point first half that put Minnesota (3-1) in position to do anything it wanted. He wound up with a career-high 318 yards on 25 of 32 passing.

The Vikings dominated every phase: Cris Carter had a career-high 11 catches for 124 yards, including a pair of touchdowns; Terry Allen scored three touchdowns, and Todd Scott had three of the Vikings' four interceptions off Boomer Esiason, who was benched midway through the third quarter.

Cincinnati (2-2) threw all-out blitzes and mixed coverages at Gannon, but nothing worked. The Vikings scored on five of their first seven possessions for a 35-0 lead.

Allen turned a short pass from Gannon into a 15-yard touchdown on Minnesota's first possession. Carter caught a 15-yarder for a 14-0 lead, and Allen's 2-yard run made it 21-0 late in the second quarter. Gannon hit 11 straight passes during the span.

Allen's 1-yard run made it 28-0 at the half, and Gannon threw a 30-yarder to Carter to complete the 35-point spurt early in the third quarter. He added a 31-yard touchdown pass to Hassan Jones in the fourth quarter.

Gannon injured his hand and sat out the second half of a 26-20 victory last Sunday over Tampa Bay. He had no apparent problems throwing Sunday, working over the Bengals' secondary with tight spirals, finding open receivers whenever he needed.

The Vikings converted 8-of-9 third-down plays in the first half, when they held the ball for nearly 21 minutes behind Gannon's high-percentage passing.

The big early lead let the Vikings defense take liberties, turning it into another miserable passing day for Esiason, the 22nd-ranked passer in the NFL. He completed 11 of 21 for 97 yards and four interceptions.

All four interceptions were poor throws, prompting a chorus of boos and calls for backup Don Hollas, who took over five minutes into the second half. Esiason now has thrown for two touchdowns and seven interceptions.

Pirates capture division

by Alan Robinson
AP sports writer

PITTSBURGH -- The Pittsburgh Pirates enjoyed winning the NL East championship so much the last two years, they decided it was a feat worth repeating.

The Pirates became the first team since Philadelphia in 1976-78 to win three straight NL East titles, beating the New York Mets 4-2 Sunday behind Danny Jackson to win their league-record ninth championship since divisional play began in 1969.

Jackson pitched six-hit ball over seven-plus innings and Jay Bell drove in two runs as the Pirates swept the three-game series to improve to 13-2 against the Mets. The Pirates certainly didn't back into their title: they're 19-7 so far this month and have won nine of their last 11, and 11 of 14.

Minutes before Pittsburgh's victory, second-place Montreal stayed mathematically alive with a 1-0 win over Chicago. But then Pirates clinched it in their final home game of the season.

The only team in baseball to win 90 or more games in each season of the 90s, the Pirates are just the third NL team to win three straight division titles and they've done it twice. They also won three in a row from 1970-72.

Pittsburgh's next challenge is to advance to the World Series. The Pirates have lost the last two years in the playoffs, and have not been to the World Series since 1979.

The NL playoffs begin Oct. 6 at the home of the West winner, most likely Atlanta. The Braves defeated Pittsburgh in a tight, seven-game series last October.

The Pirates won Sunday the way they've won all season, with plenty of good defense, with Andy Van Slyke and Barry Bonds supplying the offense and with just enough pitching.

Baseball's winningest team so far in the '90s they've won 286 games the Pirates also became the first team to clinch a division title for the second straight season. And each of their last three championships has been clinched on a Sunday afternoon.

Doug Drabek pitched the first two division clinchers, but Jackson got this one, shutting out the Mets until Dave Gallagher's one-out double and Eddie Murray's RBI single in the seventh. Jackson (8-12) struck out three and walked one until being lifted after allowing singles to Jeff McKnight and Ryan Thompson to start the eighth inning.

Danny Cox got the next two hitters, walked Murray to load the bases, then got Kevin Bass to bounce into an inning-ending force play. Stan Belinda pitched the ninth, giving up one run, and got his 17th save.

The Pirates didn't want to wait until they were in Chicago on Monday to clinch, nor did they want to wait for second-place Montreal to lose again to clinch. And there was no waiting.

Cardinals stun Miami, 19-9

Associated Press

MUNCIE, Ind. -- Tailback Corey Croom rushed for 242 yards on 39 carries, nearly out-gaining the entire Miami of Ohio offense, as Ball State defeated the Redskins 19-9 Saturday in the Mid-American Conference.

Croom gained 34 yards as Ball State moved 81 yards in 11 plays for the only touchdown of the first half. Mike Neu capped the drive with a 9-yard scoring pass to tight end Dan Mawhoor.

The Cardinals (2-2 overall, 2-0 in the MAC) led 17-0 after three quarters. Mike Swart kicked a 31-yard field goal in the third quarter and Neu ended a 67-yard, 5 play drive with a 14-yard scoring pass to Brian Oliver. Croom, who had netted only 283 yards in Ball State's first three games, had a 50-yard run on the drive's second play.

Miami (1-2-1, 0-1) got on the scoreboard on a 33-yard field goal with 10:42 to play and then moved 47 yards in six plays to score on a 3-yard toss from Neil Dougherty to Lakumba Wallace with 3:57 to play.

Ball State, which had lost seven of its last nine games with the Redskins, then had Bryant Branigan sack Dougherty in the end zone with 22 seconds to play.

The Cardinals, who held Miami to only 61 net yards rushing, recovered four of five fumbles by the visitors and recorded eight sacks for 48 yards.

Miami finished the game with 265 net yards.

WMU 19, OU 3 CMU 28, UT 9

ATHENS, Ohio -- Western Michigan quarterback Brad Tayles rushed for two short touchdowns to break open a scoreless game in the third quarter and Ohio University fumbled eight times as the Broncos won 19-3 in the Mid-American Conference Saturday.

Tayles scored on runs of 1 and 4 yards on the Broncos' first two possessions of the second half as Western Michigan improved to 2-1 overall and in the MAC. Ohio U. fell to 1-3 and 1-2.

Tayles also completed 13 of 23 passes for 158 yards with no interceptions.

Andre Wallace chipped in with 170 yards on 17 rushes for Western Michigan.

Western took the third-quarter kickoff and went 80 yards in 10 plays, capped by Tayles' plunge. After forcing Ohio U. to punt after three downs, Western put together a 61-yard drive in five plays that was aided by two Bobcat penalties, including a pass-interference call that put the ball at the 4. Tayles then made it 12-0.

Ohio U.'s only points came on a 23-yard field goal by Jeff Marchant.

Western then sealed the outcome on a 1-yard run by Dave Madsen.

D.R. Robinson completed 17 of 29 passes for 170 yards with one interception for the Bobcats.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Mich. -- Joe Youngblood threw two second-quarter touchdowns to D.J. Reid and Boris Martysz returned an interception 60 yards for another score Saturday as Central Michigan beat Toledo 28-9.

Youngblood and Reid connected on scoring plays of 19 and 51 yards as the Chippewas (3-1 overall, 2-0 MAC) moved into a first-place tie with Bowling Green, last year's conference champion.

Bowling Green, which beat East Carolina in a non-conference game Saturday, travels to Mount Pleasant for a first-place showdown next week.

Toledo (2-2, 0-2) managed just 67 net yards rushing on 24 carries, while Central finished with 195 net yards on 64 carries. Brian Pruitt led the Chippewas with 102 yards on 40 carries.

Martysz's TD return with 2:26 left in the game was the only scoring of the second half.

The Chippewas, who beat Michigan State two weeks ago and Ohio 24-0 last week, were led defensively by linebackers Mike Kiler and Bryant Satterlee, who made 11 tackles apiece. Kiler had Central's only sack and one of its two interceptions.

Central opened the scoring on Pruitt's 23-yard run with 4:53 remaining in the second quarter. Toledo got a safety with 31 seconds left in the quarter when a Central punt snap sailed out of the end zone.

Youngblood's 19-yard TD pass to Reid made it 14-2 with 9:30 to play before halftime, and the 51-yarder gave the Chippewas a 21-2 lead five minutes later.

The Rockets got their only points 1:16 before halftime on Tim Kubiak's 9-yard pass to Marcus Goodwin, who finished with nine catches for 154 yards.

Reid caught five passes for 100 yards. Youngblood was 11-of-16 for 173 yards and was intercepted once. Kubiak finished 18-of-38 for 241 yards and two interceptions.

flanker Mark Szlachcic -- and pull their offense together under a revitalized quarterback Erik White. Szlachcic had five receptions for 65 yards and receiver Ronnie Redd had 59 yards on four receptions.

"I was just really pleased for our offense," Blackney said. "We finally played a game I feel like was up to our potential."

It was White who showed the biggest improvement since the losses to Ohio State and Wisconsin. He passed for 246 yards with 27 receptions on 40 attempts and one interception, throwing to nine different receivers.

"It's a great feeling of redemption right now," White said. "I think the past two weeks we kind of struggled for whatever reason, and being able to get a win against a real formidable opponent such as East Carolina is a real shot in the arm."

White was also able to vary his cadence at the line to draw the Pirate's defense off-sides five times.

"The way our offense was functioning today, they were just outstanding," Blackney said. "I knew we were hitting on all eight cylinders. Erik probably played the best game I've seen him play in the two years we've been here. If he plays like that, we've got a good chance to have success all the way out."

ECU's head coach Steve Logan also had high praise for the Falcon ring leader.

"He did a good job with his verbal skills and drawing us off-sides," Logan said. "The defensive linemen have got to watch the football. They were listening and not focusing."
